Invite you to a two-day course on

“Essential Leadership and Business Development Skills for Professionals”

When: Tuesday / Wednesday, November 12\(^{th}\) and 13\(^{th}\), 2013

Where: Parktown Hotel, Saskatoon, SK

Instructor: Ralph Kison, Growth Through Learning Inc., Richmond, BC

Course Content:

The presentation will address essential skills for professionals:

- Leadership skills
- Communication skills
- Business development
- Personal branding

The seminar will provide attendees with timely and relevant content and material being presented to ASHRAE and related associations and firms in the engineering sector in North America. Opportunities for group interaction discussion and will be used to engage the attendees and provide maximum value and resources to apply immediately with their clients and project teams.
PURPOSE
The presentation will move beyond the technical skills of engineers and address the necessary “soft” skills for success in today’s competitive market. Most engineers excel in the technical aspects of designing and developing solutions but are often not comfortable, or are even ill equipped, to effectively and persuasively address issues relating to: uncovering new work, gaining commitment; presenting their brand and value proposition; networking and performing other business and relationship building activities.

The goal of this seminar is to provide attendees with practical techniques and skills to increase their confidence and competence levels and achieve greater personal and professional success.

PRESENTATION SUMMARY
The two day seminar will be customized to engage the participants and improve their leadership abilities, conduct business development and networking activities more effectively and present their personal brand in a more confident and professional manner.
